

MONDAY.—Before Judge Willis and a Common Jury.

Thomas Hayes was indicted for cutting and maiming Thomas Asker, with a knife at Port Macquarie, on the 19th October. It appeared that both prisoner and prosecutor were in an ironed gang at Port Macquarie; on the day laid in the information, prisoner without the slightest provocation, stabbed prosecutor twice with a knife, once in the neck and again in the side. A previous quarrel had taken place in consequence of prisoner jeering Asker upon his having been an officer in the army, he would go up to him exclaiming, "Draw your sword Captain and defend yourself!" Prisoner had nothing to urge in defence, except that he would leave be hanged as not, from the manner in which he was treated in the gang. Guilty. Remanded. James Freeman was indicted for the willful murder of Roger Kenny, by throwing him into the river Hastings, at Port Macquarie on the 10th September. It appeared in evidence that the body of an old man was found floating in the river, and upon examination a contused wound was found under the right ear. About three months afterwards prisoner informed his overseer, that he had murdered Kenny, having struck him under the ear and knocked him into the river. He subsequently made the same statement to the Police Magistrate and was committed for the same. Prisoner in defence alleged that the treatment he received caused him to make the statement with a view of getting away from the settlement. His Honor put the case to the Jury upon this statement, and after an absence of two hours returned a verdict of Not Guilty. Peter Sullivan was indicted for stealing twenty head of cattle, the property of John Mulligan. Guilty. To be transported to a penal settlement for life.

APPEAL.

William Dean appeared against the conviction of R. C. Lethbridge and H. Cox, Esquires, for selling wine without a license. Conviction confirmed, subject to a point of law reserved for the opinion of the Judges. The Court then closed its sittings.

Police Incidents.

John Hall, a son of Neptune, was charged with having been found upon the premises of Mrs. Hughes of Elizabeth-street, who stated, that on Sunday night, about 10 o'clock, hearing a noise in the yard, she ordered her servant to see what was the matter, the girl returned with hair on end, notwithstanding its extreme length, and as pale as the wrong end of a well-smoked Havannah, exclaiming "Oh! Misses, there's a man stowed away in the corner," and true enough there sat John Hall, quiddled up as Mrs. Hughes had it; putting the best face upon the matter which she could assume, she called to the intruder to surrender, who, instead of complying, bolted into the kitchen, and upon assistance being procured, he was discovered taking a delightful snooze upon the end of a table in the cupboard. He was aroused and marched to the watch-house. Upon the road he blustered and looked big, threatening to send the whole of them to Davy Jones' locker, and attempted to draw something from his pocket, which, from the ugly face he put upon the affair, there was every reason to suppose was a pistol, and so it proved to be—a pocket-pistol charged with rum. John is in custody. Thomas Fleming was charged with an assault. Miss Fanny Glover, with an amiable blush, deposed, that on Saturday night she went to the Theatre, when the performance was over, she felt thirsty and was adjourning to Liddiside, when Thomas, who was passing, wished to know how she did, to which polite inquiry he received for answer, that she would thank him to go his ways, he had nothing to say to him; Thomas was enraged, and struck the fair Fanny a back-handed wipe over the nose, which stretched her upon her back, while the fountain of life, circulating in her veins, flowed in little ganges from her nostrils—"flow on thou regal purple stream" blundered Thomas, while a Charley, who had seen the cowardly blow, took him into custody, and Fanny at the same time, she having with her a new beaver hat, for the possession of which she would not account. Thomas now admitted that he did draw his hand across her face as though brushing a musquito from her charms, for which he had to pay 10s., and Fanny took his place, but the owner of the castor stepping forward and stating that he had lent the covering, she was discharged together with the hat. John Winterbottom was charged with knocking the skin off the nose of no, not the nose, the arm of a constable, whom he took the liberty of knocking down and jumping upon, for which he was ordered to pay a fine of 10 shillings. I say, Tom, I sung out Winterbottom to a man behind him, "I say, Tom, have you such a thing as three and nine-pence half-penny about you, just to make out the change." Tom stared at the question, and started off without deigning an answer.

"DOVE INN," BRIGHTON.

BY A. POLACK, At his Bazaar, at Twelve o'clock precisely, on TUESDAY, 4th March, THE whole of those spacious Premises lately erected at considerable expense, and known as THE "DOVE INN," AT BRIGHTON, Together with upwards of Six Acres of Land attached thereto. The "DOVE" is situate just beyond the seventh mile stone on the LIVERPOOL ROAD, and affords the greatest convenience to Graziers, Butchers, and Farmers, driving Cattle into the Metropolis, the paddocks being well supplied with Good Grass and Pure Water for their accommodation, so highly necessary, and being on the road-side affords equal opportunities of rest for the weary traveller, whether pedestrians or equestrians, after a fatiguing journey from the New Country, to which this is the leading thoroughfare. To uninterested individuals this may appear bombast, but when it is considered that the original fortunate purchasers of the "Brighton Allotments" (of which this is none of the worst) are now making such vast and rapid improvements upon their several Estates, that Mr. Polack's words are being verified, when he predicted in his advertisements nearly eighteen months since, that "Brighton" would ere long "be traversed with Roads and Streets, and covered by Brilliant Inns, Villas, and Farm Houses," and in fact shortly vie with its princely namesake in the Mother Country. A POLACK, much against his inclination, will refrain from offering any further comment upon what must be apparent to every one, that is, to an industrious couple who had their own interest at heart, the "Dove Inn" holds out such a certain prospect of wealth, with an ample provision for a family that could scarcely be anticipated, and to newly arrived emigrants such a splendid opportunity for the outlay of a small capital cannot frequently occur, consequently should not be lost sight of. Further particulars as to Title, &c., may be had on reference to Messrs. Carr and Rogers, De Mestre's Buildings, George-street, and at the office of the Auctioneer. Terms liberal made known at time of sale.

"VAUCLUSE."

A. POLACK HAS great pleasure in announcing to the Inhabitants of New South Wales, that he has been honored with Instructions from the proprietor to submit to public competition at an early day so soon as the Surveyor's Plans are ready. A portion of that splendid and unequalled MARINE ESTATE, KNOWN AS VAUCLUSE, situate in those fine "LAND LOCKED" portions of "PORT JACKSON" Harbour called Watson and Rose Bays; Its situation is beautifully grand, as it commands a perfect view of the Head Lands, and sinuosities of the various Bays and inlets of the truly romantic Harbour in which it is situated, both on the East and West sides thereof, from the North and South Heads to the Parramatta River, taking in the Town of Sydney, and having the Blue Mountain Range in the Western Horizon. THE NEW SOUTH HEAD ROAD passes through the Estate which makes its distance from the Capital about four miles, along a good and lively Road, it is also about the same distance by Water, so that Conveyances at all seasons are practicable a desideratum of great importance, as Gentlemen in Public Offices (particularly those with Families) might here live economically and conveniently.—The rising Village of Watson's Bay, the celebrated Point Piper Estate, the residence of Major Gibbs, &c. &c. are contiguous, and it is within "gun shot" of the "South Head Light House" and "Flag Staff," consequently has an unobscured view of THE SOUTH PACIFIC OCEAN. It is also so situated that every vessel entering in or going out of the Harbour, must pass almost within hail, so that in this particular it may be compared to the celebrated fashionable watering place "South end" at the mouth of the Thames. For the site of an Establishment for the accommodation of Invalids and Officers on leave of absence for health, from India, another spot in the Colony could not be found, as "Sea Bathing" so requisite for such persons, may here be enjoyed in reality, amusement is also at hand in Boating, Fishing, Shooting &c. The Proprietor has decided that about Four Hundred Acres of the magnificent Estate shall be divided into spacious allotments, varying in size—when the same is completed by the Surveyor a more perfect description will be notified prior to the day of Sale. POLACK begs further to state that Mr. Cummings has been confined by ill health upwards of eight months, with no view of being able to attend to a bustling business for some time to come, which is the sole cause of his being anxious to obtain a successor to the above flourishing Inn. Supreme Court—Criminal Side.

Monday.—Before Chief Justice Dowling and a Civil Jury. William Blackhall, John Martin alias Stinger Jack, and Joseph Watkins were jointly indicted for a burglary, in the dwelling house of Edward Green, and putting the said Edward Green and his wife in bodily fear, at Hawarra, on the 9th October. Blackhall pleaded guilty. The evidence against the other prisoners, rested upon the testimony of an approver named Charles Newell, who stated that, he together with the prisoners, belonged to a Stockade; on the night laid in the information, they removed a slab and went out, which was a customary thing, and upon returning told him that they had committed the robbery in question; he acknowledged that he was an Irishman, bred to the sea and lived nine years in England supporting himself by gambling, attending fairs, &c.; he was convicted of a highway robbery, sentenced to be transported for life, and sent to this colony in the second class; the last three years his mind had been entirely occupied in laying plans to commit robberies; he had committed at least twelve robberies during the last year. From the evidence of Green and his wife, it appeared that they had received a few pounds, and upon the 9th October at night, three men came to his house and called upon him to open the door; this he refused, when one of them ascended the roof and made a hole in the bark; Mrs. Green handed up to the man £3 and told them to be satisfied with that, but it was refused, and he again put in his hand to receive the remainder, when Green fired and he fell, wounded in various parts of the body with swan shot. His comrades carried off the wounded man. The jury having some doubt of the credibility of the approver, acquitted Martin and Watkins.—Blackhall remained.

Peter Cullen was indicted for cutting and maiming, Ellen McQuade, at Patterson's River, on the 26th January. Cullen was found guilty on the second count, with intent to do bodily harm, and remained.

Before Judge Burton and a Military Jury. Walter Neary, Sen. and Walter Neary, Jun. were jointly indicted, for receiving, well knowing that they had received a few pounds, stolen by Charles Kewland and Matthew Jackson, 70lbs. of tobacco. As the evidence was supported entirely by an approver to whom the jury gave but little credence, the prisoners were acquitted. Peter Cully and John Toole, were jointly indicted for stealing 20 shirts, 20 handkerchiefs, and a variety of other property belonging to William Vivers, and putting him in bodily fear, at Grey's Creek, on the 7th January. Guilty. Remanded. The learned Judge intimated that the case was of so aggravated a nature, that they must prepare for the worst.

Richard Foster and Thomas Connor, were jointly indicted for a burglary in the dwelling house of George Furber, and stealing therefrom rain gear, &c. valued at £15 5s 2d. Dixon and William Murray, were indicted for receiving the property well knowing it to have been feloniously stolen. Foster, Guilty. Death Remanded, with a recommendation that it be mitigated to three years in irons. Connor, not guilty. Dixon, not guilty. Murray, Guilty.—Twelve months in irons.

Tuesday.—Before Judge Burton and a Military Jury. Daniel Kelly was indicted for associating and actually assisting Mary Jones, at Parramatta, on the 4th January. Guilty. Remanded to prison. The learned Judge intimated that he had horrid transaction are already so fully before the public that repetition is unnecessary. The prisoner was found guilty, and sentence of death was passed upon him. He appeared but little moved at the awful situation in which he stood.

Supreme Court.

In Banco Regina.—Thursday being the first day of term, their Honors, Chief Justice Dowling and Judge Willis, took their seats in Banco. Several executions having been ordered to be issued against Jurymen who had been fined for non-attendance.

The Attorney General moved in the estate & effects of William Bradbury, deceased, that letters of administration be granted to John and Edye Manning, Esquires, under powers of attorney, from the widow of the deceased, at present in the Birmingham Workhouse. Certificates and other documents were produced by which it appeared that the applicant was married to the deceased, who was transported in 1811, and that Mary Shields, now of Campbelltown, was her legitimate daughter. A petition from the second wife, who Bradbury married in this Colony was put in, which their Honors would give their opinion upon when they had perused it.

Mr. a'Becket moved on behalf of the Attorney General, for a Rule Nisi, calling upon Lachlan M'Alister, Esq., to show cause why a criminal information should not be filed against him, for a false, scandalous, and malicious libel, published in the Sydney Gazette of the 11th November, 1837, charging the Attorney General with having attempted to ruin four gentlemen, from political motives, by trying them for Cattle Stealing. The affidavit of Mr. Cavenagh was put in, stating that the libel complained of was published at the instance and request of Mr. M'Alister. The affidavit of the Attorney General, denied the motives imputed to him in the articles in question. Rule Nisi granted returnable next Saturday.

SKETCHES BY BOZ.

LONDON RECREATIONS.

The wish of persons in the humbler classes of life to ape the manners and customs of those whom fortune has placed above them, is often the subject of remark, and not infrequently of complaint. The inclination may, and no doubt does, exist to a great extent among the small gentility—the would be aristocratic—of the middle classes. Tradesmen and clerks, with fashionable novel-reading families, and circulating-library-subscribing daughters, get up tavern assemblies in humble imitation of Almack's, and promenade the dingy "large room" of some second-rate hotel with as much complacency as the enviable few who are privileged to exhibit their magnificence in that exclusive haunt of fashion and foolery. Aspiring young ladies, who read flaming accounts of some "fancy fair in high life," suddenly grow desperately charitable; visions of admiration and matrimony float before their eyes; some wonderful morituous institution, which, by the strangest accident in the world, has never been heard of before, is discovered to be in a languishing condition; Thomson's great room, or Johnson's nursery ground, is forthwith engaged, and the aforesaid young ladies, from mere charity, exhibit themselves for three days, from twelve to four, for the small charge of one shilling per head! With the exception of these classes of society, however, and a few other weak and insignificant persons, we do not think the contemptible attempt at imitation, to which we have alluded prevails in any great degree. The different character of the recreations of different classes, has often afforded us amusement in our walks and musings; and we have chosen it for the subject of our present sketch in the hope that it may possess some amusement for our readers.

If the regular City man, who leaves Lloyd's at five o'clock, and drives home to Hackney, Clapton, Stamford-hill, or elsewhere, can be said to have any daily recreation beyond his dinner, it is his garden. He never does any thing to it with his own hands; but he takes a great pride in it notwithstanding; and if you are desirous of paying your addresses to the youngest daughter, be sure to be in raptures with every flower and shrub it contains. If your poverty of expression compel you to make any distinction between the two, we would certainly recommend your bestowing more admiration on his garden than his wine. He always takes a walk round it before he starts for town in the morning, and is particularly anxious that the fish-pond should be kept specially neat. If you call on him on Sunday in summer time, about an hour before dinner, you will find him sitting in an arm-chair, on the lawn behind the house, with a straw hat on, reading a Sunday paper. A short distance from him you will most likely observe an handsome parouet in a large brass-wire cage; ten to one but the two eldest girls are loitering in one of the side walks, accompanied by a couple of young fellows, who are holding parasols over them—of course to keep the sun off—while the younger children, with the nursery-maid, are strolling listlessly about in the shade. Beyond these occasions, his delight in his garden appears to arise more from the consciousness of possession than actual enjoyment of it. When he drives you down to dinner on a week day, he is rather fatigued with the occupations of the morning, and tolerably cross into the bargain; but when the cloth is removed, and he has drunk three or four glasses of his favourite port, he orders the French windows of his dining room (which of course look into the garden) to be opened, and throwing a silk handkerchief over his head, and leaning back in his arm chair, descants at considerable length upon its beauty, and the cost of maintaining it. This is to impress you—who are a young friend of the family—with a due sense of the excellence of the garden, and the wealth of its owner; and when he has exhausted the subject he goes to sleep.

There is another and a very different class of men, whose recreation is their garden. An individual of this class resides some short distance from town—say in the Hampstead-road, or the Kilburn-road, or any other road where the houses are small and neat, and have little slips of back garden. He and his wife—who is as clean and compact a little body has himself—have occupied the same house ever since he retired from business twenty years ago. The wife no family. They once had a son, who died at about five years old. The child's portrait hangs over the mantelpiece in the best sitting-room, and a little cart he used to draw about is carefully preserved as a relic. In fine weather the old gentleman is constantly in the garden; and when it is too wet to go into it, he will look out of the window at it by the hour together. He has always something to do in it, and you will see him digging, and sweeping, and cutting, and messing about with manifest delight. In spring time there is no end to the sowing of seeds, and sticking little bits of wood over them, with labels, which look like epitaphs to their memory; and in the evening, when the sun has gone down, the perseverance with which he hugs a great watering pot about is perfectly astonishing. The only other recreation he has is the newspaper, which he peruses every day, from beginning to end, generally reading the most interesting pieces of intelligence to his wife, during breakfast. The old lady herself is fond of flowers, as the hyacinth-glasses in the parlour window and geranium-pots in the little front court, testify. She takes a great pride in the garden too; and when one of the four fruit-trees produces rather a large gooseberry than usual, it is carefully preserved under a wine-glass on the sideboard, for the edification of visitors, who are only informed that Mr. So-and-so planted the tree which produced it with his own hands. On a summer's evening, when the large watering-pot has been filled and emptied some fourteen times, and the old couple have quite exhausted themselves by trotting about, you will see them sitting happily together in the little summer-house, enjoying the calm and peace of the twilight, and watching the shadows as they fall upon the garden, and gradually growing thicker and more sombre, obscure the tints of their gayest flowers—no bad emblem of the years that have silently rolled over their heads, denuding in their course the brightest hues of early hopes and feelings which have long since faded away. These are their only recreations, and they require no more: they have within themselves the materials of comfort and content; and the only anxiety of each is to die before the other. This is no ideal sketch; there used to be many old people of this description; their numbers may have diminished, and may decrease still more. Whether the course female education has taken of late days—whether the pursuit of giddy frivolities and empty nothings, has tended to unfit woman for that quiet domestic life, in which they showed far more beautifully than in the most crowded assembly, is a question we should feel little gratification in discussing: we hope not.

Let us turn now to another portion of the London population, whose recreations present about as strong a contrast as can well be conceived—we mean the Sunday pleasers; and let us beg our readers to imagine themselves stationed by our side in some well-known rural "Tea-garden." The heat is intense this afternoon; and the people, of whom there are additional parties arriving every moment, look as warm as the tables which have been recently painted, and have the appearance of being red-hot. What a dust and noise! Men and women—boys and girls—sweethearts and married people—babies in arms and children in chaises—pipes and shrimps—cigars and periwinkles—tea and tobacco. Gentlemen, in alarming waistcoats and steel watch-guards, promenade about, three abreast, with surprising dignity (or as the gentleman in the next box facetiously observes, "cutting it uncommon fat!")—ladies, with great, long, white pocket-handkerchiefs, like small tablecloths, in their hands, chasing one another on the grass in the most playful and interesting manner, with the view of attracting the attention of the aforesaid gentlemen—husbands in perspective, ordering bottles of ginger-beer for the objects of their affections; and a lavish disregard of expense; and the said objects washing down huge quantities of "shrimps" and "winkles," with an equal disregard for their own bodily health and subsequent comfort—boys, with great silk hats just balanced on the top of their heads, smoking cigars, and trying to look as, if they liked 'em—gentlemen in pink shirts and blue waistcoats, occasionally upsetting either themselves or somebody else.

Some of the finery of these people provokes a smile; but they are all clean, and happy, and disposed to be good-natured and sociable. Those two motherly-looking women in the smart pelisses, who are chatting so confidentially, inserting a "ma'am" at every fourth word, seraped an acquaintance about a quarter of an hour ago; it originated in admiration of the little boy who belongs to one of them—that diminutive specimen of mortality in the three-cornered pink satin hat with black feathers. Those two men in blue coats and drab trousers, who are walking up and down, smoking their pipes, are their husbands. The party in the opposite box are a pretty fair specimen of the generality of the visitors. There are the father and mother, and the old grandmother, a young man and woman, and an individual addressed by the euphonious title of "Uncle Billy," who is evidently the wit of the party. They have some half-dozen children with them; but it is scarcely necessary to notice the fact, for it is a matter of course here. Every woman in "the garden," who has been married for any length of time, must have had twins on two or three occasions; it is impossible to account for the extent of juvenile population in any other way. Observe the inexpressible delight of the old grandmother at Uncle Billy's splendid joke of "tea for four; bread and butter for forty;" and the loud explosion of mirth which follows his wafaring a paper "pigtail" on the waiter's collar. The young man is evidently "keeping company" with Uncle Billy's niece, and Uncle Billy's hints—such as "Don't forget me at the dinner, you know; I shall look out for the cake, Sally;" "I'll be a godfather to your first-wager it's a boy;" and so forth, are equally embarrassing to the young people, and delightful to the elder ones. As to the old grandmother, she's in perfect ecstasies, and does nothing but laugh herself into fits of coughing, until they have finished the "gin and water warm with" of which Uncle Bill ordered "glasses round" after tea, "just to keep the night air out, and wind it up comfortable and riglar arter sich a day, which certainly was 'myther warm,' as the child said when it fell in the fire." It's getting dark, and the people begin to move; the field leading to the town is quite full of them; the little hand-chaises are dragged wearily along; the children are tired, and amuse themselves and the company generally by crying, or resort to the much more pleasing expedient of going to sleep—the mothers begin to wish they were at home again—sweethearts grow more sentimental than ever, as the time for parting arrives—the gardeners look mournful enough by the light of the two lanterns which hang against the trees for the convenience of smokers—and the waiters, who have been running about incessantly for the last six hours, think they feel a little tired, as they count their glasses and their gains.

EXTRACTS.

Pride and Poverty.—I know another instance, and let it be observed, I am only speaking the truth, of two gentlemen whose ambition to be considered among the great wofully contrasts with their pecuniary circumstances. They are now living, and have been for two years, in one furnished apartment on a second floor. There is no room for two beds in the apartment, and consequently one of them is obliged to sleep on the sofa. This they do alternately; or, if he who has the good fortune to possess the bed on a particular night has occasion to rise earlier in the morning than his friend, the latter considers the circumstance quite a windfall—he leaps at once from the sofa, and takes possession of the vacant bed. But the most ludicrous part of the business is the way in which they manage their joint stock of linen. Every one has heard of Falstaff's ragged regiment, who only had three shirts, and these all tattered and torn, among them, although one hundred and fifty in number. My two heroes are not quite so badly off, for they have four tolerably good shirts between them. By an arrangement which I cannot properly describe, they always contrive to have one of the shirts ready for any emergency, and which ever of them happens to need it first is entitled to it. In the article of eating and drinking, when at their own expense, they are obliged to be remarkably moderate. They vegetate on next to nothing; and yet they are in the habit of dining out and mixing with persons moving, if not in strictly aristocratic society, in a sphere which approximates to it. I admire the man who wishes to keep up his station in society, though his circumstances are reduced; but the individuals I refer to are always, while suffering so many privations at home, striving to get into society far above their station, either as gentlemen or men of education.—The Metropolis.

Free Trade.—There have been many wonders worked by commerce in the ancient as well as the modern world; but no nation, ancient or modern, ever had difficulties to encounter so permanent and irremovable. When Holland had fortified itself against the ocean, her labours were comparatively over; and having sown she reaped her harvest. When Tyre and Carthage acquired and practised navigation, they found themselves the monopolists of the sea, both without the pillars of Hercules and within; and without additional expenses or impediments, they secured an indefinite augmentation of returns. But Switzerland has to renew, on every journey, the same dull, dreary transit. Embosomed amidst other states, she is not only subject to their political revolutions, but is at the mercy and caprice of less educated neighbours. Sometimes a German tariff, sometimes Italian non-intercourse, frequently French and English jealousy, but Alps always impede her progress—yet cheapness and industry have surmounted all these difficulties. If the Thames refuse, in the Hudson she finds a haven for her merchandise—and should that fail, she will seek it in the Amazon or the Indus. If the west be hermetically sealed, with inextinguishable spirit she perils her productions, on land journeys of amazing length, through Russia and Persia to the east. The same spirit which preserved her independence preserves her industry. The memory of Tell still abides in her mountains; and as he saved her from Austrian domination, her industrious artisans now enable her to bear up against the more destructive warfare of a foreign competition.—Edinburgh Review.

News for the Ladies.—Three-fourths of the inhabitants of Cattsville, Wisconsin Territory, are males, the other fourth are married. Some merchants there offer to pay the freight of a cargo of girls, and will ensure them, before starting, a handsome log hut each, and as much omny and bears' meat as they can eat. All they will have to do is, to hoe corn, dig potatoes, and do the house-work in general.—New York Paper.

Breach of Promise in America.—Josiah Coldart (cold heart) has been mulcted in 150 dollars, damages and costs, at Puckneyville, for promising to marry an amiable young woman named Mary Devenport, and afterwards refusing. The cold-hearted lover forked over the cash, and declared, "that it was cheap enough at double the money." He was about to join himself for life to a proprietress of 20,000 acres.—New York Paper.

Greek Enterprizes.—An omnibus has been started by an English gentleman at Athens, and a mail-coach by Government, which run four times a-day between Athens and the Piræus. A new paper in Greek and German, called Hope, also has appeared, which professes to be particularly for Germany, that they may know what their countrymen are doing there, and what may be their hopes for the future.
