(I have no doubt, the silly calves that they (I use his very phrase)
By Heav'n gifted with but one idea, And that so limited and far from clear,

Mistook for the ship's stays The metaphor employed for rhyme To make the metre nicely chime; Whereas the words "storm-stay-set-trim," Which you observe come in with skim, Was meant (which all but those who'er blind Or of that tribe, the asses kind, Must see) to saw that however hard, The wind might blow, she was prepard, That all the sails were placed in form, To counteract the raging storm, Or "stay" th' effects upon the ship, Which otherwise might chance to dip, Or duck, or dive, or plundge, or go Embedaed heath the depths below; That some were reef'd, some stow'd, some set, To arge the bark through " heavy wet..." To keep her so that she would swim, And therefore set in "storm stay trim;"

And therefore set in "storm stay trim;"
Ho ver, to come within the range,
Of their ideas, the verse I'll change,
And if I use minute detail,
To understand it, they can't fail.
Then out he took his pocket book,
And wrote off band Sir, this chang'd stanza:
"With spanker brail'd the mains'il closely stow'd,
The tops'ils reef'd, jib fast, all in sung trim,
The howling winds our gallant bark may good,
She like a sea fowl o'er the waves will skim"
"There, said he, the munskulls may,
P'haps understand what now I say,
Tho' I admit 'tis bootless pains

Tho' I admit 'tis bootless pains The I admit 'Us nooties pains'
To try to penetrate the brains
Of men, where nought exists but skull;
'Tis vain to search pigs backs for wool!'
As this contemptaons succer found vent
Whistling away friend Whimsa went, I noted down our conversation, Deeming nothing could serve better

Deeming nothing could serve better For a full ample explanation,
To all parties, hence this letter. You'll say his hasty interjection,
Might be spared as harsh reflection;
To this responding—I reply
Inver Sir, will tell a lie,
For the' I own he's something hot,
Pray who could listen, and would not lead rec'd, at hearing pert remarks. Pray who could listen, and would not Feel vex'd, at hearing pert remarks, From empty headed brainless sparks, Whose mighty comprehension goes, No farther, than extend their nose; Whose heads would best adorn a shop, Exalted on a wooden prop, To intimate the man dwells there,

Who carns his bread by dressing hair;— As blocks I'm sure they'd be preferr'd, As blocks I'm sure their nonsense heard;
By all who have their nonsense heard;
Besides, I think they'd do more good
While standing in the place of wood.
You've my opinion—fare-ye-well
Now let the asses bray.—E. L.

This completely turned the tables, and caused the laugh to recoil-the force of satire prevailed, -ridicule was hushed, and from that time, due respect was paid to poetical license, lest perchance the censorious should haply be taken for braying asses.

The above described property, on Plan No. 1, it is almost needless to say, is situated in the

Most Wealthy District

of New South Wales: it is bounded on all sides by the Lands of gentlemen whose spirit and enterprize are proverbial through the colony, and the rapid improvements they are making is a sufficient guarantee that the Allot-ments now offered will double in value by the expiration of the year 1839.

The old residents 'tis not necessary to point out that New Town has long been selected by the ELITE of SYDNE Y as the spot where they may abide in peace, and seek repose apart from the din of this busy city, where they might steal to the quiet cot, and renew their wearied frames—they might inhale

In endeavouring to offer a few remarks upon this land J. T, would preface by saying that he has never been entrusted with a Sale of Property so well deserving the attention of Capitalists, Merchants, and others connected with shipping interests, as is the one now brought under their notice; it is, as will be seen by the Plans, form d chiefly of the headlands, jutting orth into the very centre of water, say 10 fathoms alongside, and were originally purchased for Private Wharfs. For the Establishment of Ship Builders' yards, Whaling, Coopering, or other Premises, these Allotments offer an opportunity at a trifling expense, which never can occur again, as all the Land in the vicinity of Sydney Covahaving water frontage is actually disposed of.

This spot is also peculiarly adapted for the erection of Marine Villas, and as the Town of St. Leonard is fast progressing, its value must daily be on the increase; the road thereto passes through the heart of the Land, and is, in fact, the only passable road to it; the ground is of first rate quality, and the Allotments are arranged of sufficient extent for gardens, pleasure grounds, &c., the purity of the air is not sur-passed in the world, and the scenery has been ustly said to rival in beauty the much admired

Harbour of Rio de Janeiro. On the north is overlooked a richly wooded country, studded thickly with the residences of the private Gentlemen of Sydney; on the east the Bays, Inlets, and Islands of Port Jackson, in all their endless variety; on the south the Town of Sydney, with its costly and majestic Buildings, and the bason of the Cove laden with the wealth of various nations; whilst to the west the Parramatta River, with her many host of trading Craft, and an exteut of Wood and Water Scenery Form a tout ensemble-much easier imagined than described Van Diemen's Land.

By the Lotus and William, we have received a further addition to our files of Hobart Town and Launceston journals, in one of the former we are sorry to learn the death of that worthy and much respected civil officer Deputy Commissary-General Moodie. The True Colonist, Tasmanian, and Review gives the following particulars :-

It is our melancholy duty this week to record the death of Mr. Afleck Moodie, who for the last twenty years has been at the head of the Commissariat Department in this Colony. Mr. Moodie died on Tuesday morning, of an inflammation in the chest, and was buried in the Presbyterian burial ground yesterday, with military honors. The funeral was attended by His Excellency Sir John Franklin, and most of the respectable inhabitants. Mr. Moodle was 73 years of age, and has left a widow (sister to the late Sheriff Bannister) and four fine children to deplore his death, which will be felt as a colonial loss in his official capacity, his long and in-timate acquaintance with the wants and re-sources of the colony having qualified him for rendering the most valuable services, both to the local government and to the settlers, in the man-agement of that important branch of the public expenditure, over which he presided. Moodie was warmly attached to Scotland, and every thing that was Scotch; and many of his countrymen, now in affluence, owe their ud-vancement to his friendship and patronage. He was a firm and valuable supporter of the Scotch Church, of which he was latterly an Elder, elected by the members.

He died in a very happy state, prepared and resigned to meet the appointment of Benjidene.

resigned to meet the appointment of Providence by which he was called hence, and resting his hope and his confidence in the truths of the Gospel. We understand that the congregation of St. Andrew's Church intend to put on mourning next Sunday, as a mark of respect to his memory. The managers have also hung the pulpit with black.

We copy the following notice on the subject of Mr. Moodie's death from the Review:—
The hand of the destroyer has been bussly at work! We deeply regret to announce the death yesterday, of Quarter-master Archibald Fair grieve, of the 21st. R. S. F., and this morning of Deputy Commissary General Afleck Moodic. The former old and deserving soldier entered the service in 1800, and in 1828 was promoted, in consequence of his highly meritorious conduct, to the rank he held at his death. Never was there a more zealous and faithful soldier—his unassuming character made him universally esteemed and respected—and his loss is sincerely lamented by all ranks of his regiment, in which he served during the period of 38 years. We are not enabled to state accurately the time at which the late decouragement of the late of the server of the late of the server of the late of the are not enabled to state accurately the time at which the late deeply regretted Deputy Commissary General entered the service. We think he joined the Peninsular Army, at Villa Franca, in the year 1810. He was present throughout the whole of the subsequent campaigns. He received the rank of A. C. G. in 1816, of D. C. G. in 1821. He arrived here, in 1821, to assume the command of the department, which he has since administered acquality to the department. since administered equally to the advantage and satisfaction of the government, the service, and the public. In private life he was warmly regarded, and his loss will be severely felt, in paricular by his estimable widow, and his family of four young children. CRUSADE AGAINST THE FIET PRESS .- WE learn that on the other side of the Colony, one Mr. Breton, a Police Magistrate, has been carrying about some sort of document for signatures praying for fresh restrictions on the press. A report made in the True Colonist, touching this gentleman, has raised his ire, and poor worm over-rating his importance, he sets to work to attempt to clog the press for daring to tell the truth about him. This respectable police magistrate in his crusade, met with an indignant repulse wheresoever he went, and after a most vigilant attempt to obtain recruits to his "do-cument," was obliged to give it up for a bad job, having obtained the name of only one butcher. The fact of these very sensitive gentlemen being so very desirous to suppress a fair report of their bad conduct, is a convincing proof of what they would be, if the press was not a check against them, and speaks more in favor of its worth than all the praise they could afford,—Cornwall Chronicle. We are happy to learn, that the Lieutenant-Governor, with that consideration which he invariably manifests, when the good conduct of prisoners of the Crown is brought under his notice, has been pleased to reward two servants of the late D. C. G. Moodie, by granting to one a free pardon, and the other a ticket of leave, in testimony of His Excellency's approbation of their exemplary behaviour during a period of their exemplary behaviour during a period of many years in their late master's service, and more particularly for their attention to him in his last illness. We understand that the indul-gence to these men was solicited by Mr. Moodie's widow, to whose request His Excellency immediately acceded. - Courier, Dec. 7.

TIC DOLOREAUX.-We learn from the French scientific journals, that M. Magendie continues to obtain the happiest results from the applica tion of Electricity in affections of the senses, particularly in that acute disease named Tic Doloreaux. He causes the electric current to pass over the nerves by means of needles of platina, placed at greater or less intervals. In some instances a single application is said to be sufficient; and, in one case of dreadful suffering, in which the patient had long been forced, from the pain of speaking, to express his desires by writing, six applications to the nerve entirely removed a malady of three years duration.—

Cornwall Chronicle. SICKNESS .- Sickness to an unusual extent is now prevalent, and scarcely a fourth person is to be met in Hobart Town who is not suffering, or has not recently recovered from cold, in some shape or another.—Bent's News.

COLONIAL .- Parliamentary. - Two hundred and thirty-five thousand pounds were voted in the House of Commons on the 9th of July, to defray the charge of maintaining convicts in New South Wales and Van Diemen's Land .--Atlas.—Ibid.

THE COMMISSARIAT .- By the lamented death of Mr. D. C. G. Moodie, the charge of the Commissariat Department devolves upon the senior officer Mr. D. A. C. G. Fletcher, who has a was such notice given or enquiry sought for upwards of fifteen years conducted under in the cases alluded to? Certainly and distinctly satisfactory manner.—Ibid.

The rage for building, which for so long a time has been perfectly stagnant, appears to be gradually reviving in the town of Launceston. Several houses of considerable dimensions are in the course of erection. During the past few weeks our wooden houses have become suddenly endued with a strange locomotive propensity running from one part of the town to another with a velocity perfectly surprising. We have seen one or two standing in the middle of the streets for more than one night, to the serious inconvenience of the passers by. To talk of a house standing in the middle of the street all night, and being carried away in the morning, may appear strange to the English reader, but such is the case, and we can count no less than ten houses which have changed places within the last fortnight,-Cornwall Chronicle,

On Monday evening last, one of the most splendid entertainments ever given in this exclaimed the parent. "Yes," said Mr. Pick-colony, took place at the Theatre, in Campbell wick, "It's nat'ral," said Mr. Weller, after some street. The friends of the officers of the 21st consideration, "nat'ral but rayther alarmin. TUESDAY, DEC. 18 .- Before D. Dunlop, Esq., Police Magistrate. John Clarke, prisoner of the Crown, attached to No. 1 Stockade, at the 17-mile Hollow, stood charged with absconding himself from his gang without leave, on Sunday evening last. Sentenced 50 lashes. He was further charged with being found on the said evening, in the house of Thomas Michael Pembroke, (a suspected illicit retailer of spirits) in a state of intoxication .-Sentenced 50 lashes, and returned to his gang. Before Sir John Jamison, M. C.—Euphemia M'Donald, per ship Buffalo, assigned servant to Christopher Frederick, of Evan, stood charged with absenting herself on Sunday evening until dinner time on Monday. One week in the cells at the Factory, and returned to Government by desire of her reters.

by desire of her master. James Shea and James Lea, prisoners attached to No. 1 Stockade, at 17 mile Hollow, stood charged with robbery. It appeared from the testimony of Robert John Hornmace, in the employ of Mr. W. Lawson, of Bathurst, that on the 1984 of last Normhole the 28th of last November, he was on his way to Bathurst, in company with a team, on which was a portmanteau belonging to him. That the dray stopped at Thomas M. Pembroke's and during the evening he observed his portmanteau removed from the dray on to the ground, but conceiving that the drayman had dislodged it for some purpose of convenience, he did not notice further until he found it was stolen, the following morning. A portmanteau, and a variety of articles of apparel, &c., were produced, riety of articles of apparel, &c., were produced, which he swore to as constituting a part of his property so stolen. It appeared that the prisoner Lea, committed the robbery, and admitted Shea into partnership, he on his part employed the messenger of the gang to dispose of the property, and hence the ball was opened.—Committed for trial. Thomas M. Pembroke, was fined 250 dollars for harboring five prisoners of the Crown attached to the showe gang soners of the Crown attached to the thove gang, on Sunday week last.

It has been the custom for private gentlemen to seat themselves on the Bench at Penrith with the magistrates, so that a stranger could not distinguish them from the Justices—this we always conceived a toleration on the part of the Bench, in some degree reprehensible, as derogat-ing from the dignity that a Court of Justice should maintain—Mr. Dunlop appears to have fallen in with our notions in this respect. Sur geon Black was about commencing operations in the epistolary way on Tuesday last, on the same desk with the Police Magistrate, as he has been want to do,—Mr. D. politely pointed out him that there was a table below for the purpos but that he could not allow his papers and bool to be interfered with on the Bench. Dr. withdrew rather ill-temperedly, and expresses his determination to persist, when another Ma gistrate was on the Bench. We considered, a the time, that this was little short of contemp however, Mr. Dunlop is the very man that will be his duty in real of presently arising which do his duty in case of necessity arising, which we should regret to be the case; as a quiet obe dience where properly required is by far the wisest mode of acting. We advise Mr. Dunlog to keep the seat of Justice clear from all introducers—there is plenty of other good accommodal time. The sensible man can or would be offended. tion; no sensible man can or would be offende When Captain Walpole was Police Magistra at Penrith, he would not allow the first gentl man in the land to sit on the Bench. Mr. Charl Sims, Coroner of Penrith, was committed a fo days ago to take his trial for assault and rescu ng a prisoner from the custody of a constable Inquests.—An inquest was held a few da ago by Mr. Coroner Sims, at the residence of the Chief Constable, on the body of Sarah Simpson, a free married woman, who it appeared died rom the effects of enfluenza, having been eleven days preriously ill, at the house of the said Chief Constable, and finally burst a blood vessel from the severity of the cough. Verdict, died by the visitation of God. Another inquest was held on the body of Thomas Pamphlet, alias James Groom, who died at the house of Thomas James, bucke maker of Penrith, a very old man, having been six weeks previously ill, of which the Chief Constable had been acquainted by the said Thomas James, in requesting to be informed who was to bury the patient in the case of death. Verdict, died by the visitation of God.

We unhesitatingly pronounce both of the above inquests unnecessary and improper, as well might inquests be concurred on all who died by the prevailing Catarrh, We say improper and unnecessary, inasmuch as it leaves a door open for intrusion into the privacy of any family when the hand of providence has stricken. The expiration of the body of your wife or daughter to the inspection of a body of Jurors, however respectable, merely because death ensues from a prevailing disease is preposterous!!! The law in defining the duties of a Coroner, confines the convention of his inquests to such cases where the party came by an unnatural or violent death; -in which instances, notices is to be given to the Coroner by the inhabitants of the place. Quere the late D. C. G., its most active duties in a very not!! Besides, by the convention of such unsatisfactory manner.—Ibid. drawn from their occupations. The Trersury is charged with the expense of an attendant Sur geon, £2. and Coroner's fees; and in many cases the feelings of the diseased's relatives are liable to be injured and outraged. Let us hear no more of such proceedings! If the Coroner of Sydney had adopted such a line of procedure, during the devastation of the late Epidemic, both that Officer and the Surgeon's attendance would have gleaned a tolerable harvest I trow. It would have been a convenient mode of acquir ing a little loose cash.

ECCENTRICITIES IN HOARDING PAPER MONEY.

ECCENTRICITIES IN HOARDING PAPER MONEY.

—The Bank of England derives a small profit—though a very small one—through the eccentricities of some of the parties who hold its bank post bills. It is not long ago since an executric gentleman residing in Portland-street framed and exhibited in one of the apartments of his house, for five consecutive years, a bank post bill for £30,000. It was only taken down and converted into money by his hoirs, when he himself had crossed the well-known bourne of Shakspeare. It may at first sight appear strange that he should thus have exposed to the risk of being stolen an instrument representing so much money. But the fact was, that the circumstance of ney. But the fact was, that the circumstanceof its being so exhibited was well known at the bank any person than himself, presenting it in Thread-needle-street, would have been immediately pounced on as a thief. Another bank post bill, from the concealment of which the bank derived no inconsiderable profit, was discovered some years ago, under very singular circumstances. In a house looking into Hyde Park, and now the town residence of a celebrated noble lord, a dispute chanced to occur one evening among a party of noblemen and gentlemen, respecting the meaning of a certain passage of Scripture. One of the party, repeating the passage, asked its meaning of a dean of the Church of England who happened to be present. The clergyman, who had devoted fully as much of his time to the galeties of the world as he did to the study of the Scripture soil there were the meaning of the Scripture soil the scripture and the scripture soil the scripture s study of the Scriptures, said there was no such passage in the Bible, A second difference of opinion among the party arose on this point, when the gentleman who introduced the subject said that if a bible were given him, he would at once point out the passage in one of the historical books of the Old Testament. The bible which changed to be the nearest at the time was a quarto one, which the mother of Lord R——in whose house the party were, had been in the habit of daily reading, out which had been laid among other old religious books on a shelf out of the way and had not been opened since her death some years before. On the sacred volume being opened, a piece of paper was found in it, which, on examination, turned out to be a bank
