

Lying.—To lie to the prejudice of others, argues malice and villany: to lie in excuse of ourselves, guilt and cowardice; both ways, a design to delude with false representations of things, and advantage ourselves by the deceit. Now, however, artificially we may carry on this infamous practice for a while, in the end it is always discovered; and it is hardly to be imagined what infinite contempt is the consequence. Nay, the more plausibly we have conducted our fallacies before, the more severely shall we be censured afterwards. From that moment we lose all trust, all credit, all society; for all men avoid a liar as a common enemy; truth itself in his mouth loses its dignity, being always suspected, and often disbelieved.

If, therefore, you should ever unwarily fall into an offence, never seek to cover it over with a lie; for the last doubles the former, and each makes the other more inexcusable; whereas what is modestly acknowledged is easily forgiven, and the very confession of a small trespass establishes an opinion that we are innocent of a greater.

Dishonesty.—But truth in speech must likewise be accompanied by integrity in all your dealings; for it is as impossible for a dishonest person to be a good agent as it is for a madman, or an idiot, to govern himself or others by the laws of common sense. Dare not, therefore, allow yourself even to wish to convert the property of another to your own use, more especially where it is committed to your charge; for breach of trust is as heinous an aggravation of theft, as pretended friendship is of murder. If, therefore, you should be lucky in your frauds, and escape without being punished and detected, you will nevertheless stand self-condemned, be ashamed to trust yourself with your own thoughts, and wear in your very countenance both the consciousness of guilt and dread of a discovery; whereas innocence looks always upward, meets the most inquisitive and suspicious eye, and stands undaunted before God and man. On the other hand, if ever your knaveries come to light, (to say nothing of the penalties of the law), with what shame and confusion of face must you appear before those you have wronged! and with what grief of heart must your friends and relations be made eye or ear witnesses of your disgrace? Nor is this all; for, even supposing you should be convinced of your folly, and sincerely abhor it for the future, you must nevertheless be always liable to suspicion, and others will have the boldness to pilfer, on the presumption that you will be understood to be the thief.

Fidelity.—There is still another sort of fidelity, which may be called affection, as the other is of action, being almost of as much consequence, too, and what never fails to endear you to those in whose favour it is employed; we mean that of defending their reputations, not only negatively, by avoiding all reproachful, indecent or even familiar terms in speaking of them, but positively, by endeavouring at all times to vindicate them from the open aspersions and base insinuations of others.

Benevolence.—Benevolence should be cultivated by every noble mind, as there is nothing so conducive to permanent popularity as a proper exhibition of this enchanting sentiment. A charity sermon is a fine stimulant to a benevolent mind. As the donation which your generous feelings may prompt you to contribute is always received at the church doors, this is undoubtedly one of the best methods of publishing to your fellow-parishioners the humanity as well as the liberality of your disposition. We have heard of other advantages attendant upon this description of alms-giving. Should any rascals have imposed upon you an half-crown which is a native of the Minorities and not of the Mint, a charity sermon will be found a ready means of obaining a good name, and getting rid of your bad money. You need have no fears that the charity whose interests you are anxious to promote would be any sufferer by the counterfeit which you have so liberally bestowed; for, rest assured, it would again obtain a ready circulation, as no one could be base enough to suspect that the trustees would ever dream of indulging in a little pious smashing. There is another admirable mood of giving vent to your benevolence. The columns of a newspaper afford a fine opportunity for the exhibition of charitable examples; whilst the publication of your name in conjunction with ten and sixpence, not only tends to relieve the distressed and to stimulate the more sluggish sympathies of others, but also to exalt yourself in the opinion of your fellow-creatures. Giving alms in private is far from commendable; for every one must be well aware of the social value of example; who, therefore, can be justified in 'hiding his candle under a bushel?'

Among the 178,000,000 individuals who inhabit Europe there are said to 17,900,000 beggars, or persons who subsist at the expense of the community without contributing to its resources. In Denmark the proportion is 5 per cent., in England, 10 per cent; in Holland, 14 per cent.

TRISTAN D'ACUNHA.—During Napoleon's confinement at St. Helena, the British government had a garrison here, which, on Bonaparte's death, was withdrawn. But an old corporal, named Glass, having nearly served the term in the army which entitled him to retire, obtained permission to remain behind, with his wife (a Hottentot), one child, and two privates of his corps. The two soldiers, however, soon grew tired of this mode of living, and took advantage of the visit of a whaling vessel to leave the island; and thus old Glass, wife, and child, became sole possessors of the place—"monarch of all he surveyed." The island is volcanic, and has a high peak rising from a table-land; the table-land is 1,000 feet from the level of the sea, and from it rises the peak, to a further elevation of 7,600 feet. At its summit is an immense crater filled with water, round whose margin the albatross and other sea fowl build their nests. The table-land is altogether useless, being very boggy, and having not less than forty craters on it. The land, therefore, available for the settlement, is merely a patch of six or seven miles long, and from a quarter to nearly half a mile in breadth, from the mountain side to the sea, from whose level it is raised about forty or fifty feet. From being the solitary residence of one man, Tristan d'Acunha has now a population of seventy-three, and of these, fifteen are the children of old Governor Glass; and his children and grand-children amount to twenty-seven. His daughters are good looking, though very dark, and readily find husbands. You will be curious to know how they get them. Very many American ships touch at this spot for supplies of potatoes and water: some of their crews have, from time to time, remained; and, unfortunately, a great number of ships have been wrecked on the island, to whose crews the old governor has always behaved in a manner that does him the greatest credit. A few of these people have remained with him, and as every one on the island is indebted to the good old man for some favour, either a wife, or assistance in building and stocking a house, for a couple of draft oxen, some sheep, or some solid favour of that kind, so each person is attached to him by the strong ties of interest and gratitude; and he, being parson, teacher, doctor, and friend, is treated by all with respect. Tristan d'Acunha is a perfect model of a republic—the laws very simple, as you may suppose. Thus each person on the island in turn supplies ships with provisions, the profits of which sale are his own and this rule being never deviated from, all are contented and happy. There are now many sheep and cows on the island, some pigs and potatoes of the first quality, water in abundance; and without luxuries, and not aware of any wants, the people are contented. The population of the island is somewhat mixed—consisting of Dutchmen, Danes, Frenchmen, Americans, English, and Tristans.

ADVERTISEMENT.

MR. ANDREW BENT, late Newspaper Proprietor, of Van Diemen's Land, would feel most happy to treat with any of the Proprietors of Newspapers, or other Gentlemen intending to commence a Public Journal, either in New South Wales or any of the Australasian Colonies, as the Printer, Sub-conductor, Reader, or Superintendent of their Printing Establishment. His long practical experience in the profession, he being now the Father of the Press in these Colonies, and especially in attending to the details of (and which is a very great advantage in conducting) a Newspaper, induces him to think, or hope at least, that he might still be of some use in that capacity to the Public. The strong and very flattering testimonials which he can produce from some of the most distinguished characters of the Colony, expressive of their high opinion of his conduct and reputation, will, he trusts, be an additional recommendation of him to the notice of his friends and the Public. For they will shew, that no man can be more anxious than he is, that his labours should be directed (and it is to be hoped successfully) to a more useful result than they have since he has ceased being a Public Journalist in Australia. He is still, he confides, qualified to be of some use in society: of that utility, he hopes to reap a reasonable remuneration whenever his long practical experience, professional tact, and actual services shall be fairly tried and brought into action.

It is highly gratifying to Mr. Bent to know and feel, that he still enjoys, and he hopes not undeservedly, the good opinion of those Gentlemen who have known him for the last fifteen or twenty years. The sincerity with which they have expressed their readiness to promote his interests in business, and anxiety to hear of his future success in life, cannot but be highly esteemed and valued; and he may here add, that their good wishes and powerful support, shall always be deeply engraven upon his heart. For proud indeed must he feel when he is enabled to say, that even one of the Honourable the Judges of the Supreme Court, who has known him during that long period, should, in recommending him to His Excellency Sir George Gipps, express himself thus:—"I shall be glad to hear of your better fortune at any time; and you are at liberty to shew this letter to any person, or in any quarter, that may be likely to be of use to you."

Mr. Bent, having had some experience in Mercantile and Agricultural pursuits, which he carried on on his own account during the last few years in this and the sister Colony, begs further to intimate, that he would have no objection to join, or assist, as an Agent or otherwise, any person in these branches of trade, and Colonial industry, or to undertake any Commission Business or Agency that might be confided to him; which shall be executed with assiduity, punctually, and dispatch.

Letters, addressed to the care of Messrs. Kemp and Fairfax, "Sydney Morning Herald" Office, or Mr. A. Bent, jun., "Colonial Observer" Office, will be punctually attended to; and further particulars may be known by applying to Mr. Braim, Head Master, Sydney College; Ralph Mansfield, Esq., Secretary to the Gas Light Company; Mr. J. Coyle, Hatter, Lower George-street; or, to T. W. Bowden, Esq., George-street.

Sydney, August 19, 1843.

Looking Glasses, Cheval and others.

NETTA AND HUGHES, CARVERS, Gilders, Looking-glass, and Picture-Frame makers, opposite the Royal Hotel, George-street, beg to call public attention to the large assortment of Glasses of every description, and best quality. All glass silvered, frames re-guilt, and the trade supplied on the lowest terms.

NOTICE OF REMOVAL.

FISHER AND CO., beg to intimate to their Friends and the Public, generally, that they have Removed from their Counting House and Stores at Dixon's Wharf, to premises in George-street, between the Commercial Bank and the Stores of Messrs. Peek, and Co.; they have therefore to request that all communications, in future, may be addressed to the Counting-house in George-street.

H. F. will in future have samples of Colonial Wines of his own manufacture for inspection, and will undertake free of cost, the agency of parties who have or make Colonial Wine for sale.

August 11, 1843. 42

Fraud Detected.

TO prevent a most barefaced imposition which has been lately perpetrated, the undersigned respectfully inform their kind friends that in future all their

will be wrapped in paper, with the name of their firm printed in full, which will effectually put a stop to the nefarious practice of the unprincipled, and ensure to their discerning patrons the luxury of the only genuinely prepared beverage in the city.

EDWARD CAMPBELL, & CO.

Removal.

THE undersigned has removed his business from opposite the Market, in George-street, to the premises formerly occupied by Messrs. Potts, Baxter, and Co., immediately opposite the Old Burial Ground, in the same street, where he has on sale his usual extensive stock of Wines, Spirits, Ale, Porter, and Cordials of every description, both in and out of bond.

A considerable reduction in the price of goods sold for cash.

H. MACDERMOTT.

George-street, Sydney, July 29.

Australian Musical Academy.

MR. NATHAN'S SINGING CLASS, on the plan originally proposed by him in his "Essay on the history and theory of Music, and on the qualities, capabilities, and management of the human voice," dedicated, by special command, to his Majesty George IV., in 1823, and which plan is now so highly patronized by the Queen of England, her Majesty's Ministers, and by most of the reigning monarchs on the continent of Europe, has re-commenced at Mr. Nathan's residence, Elizabeth-street South.

Applications to join in class singing to be made between the hours of two and three, when a prospectus of terms, &c., may be procured.

DONYBROOK FAIR HOTEL, YORK-STREET, SYDNEY.

(Late M'Laughlin's.)

MARTIN GILL, late of Pitt-street Pastrycook and Confectioner, begs to announce that he has taken the above Establishment, and trusts in a continuance of the favours of its former patrons, and the support of the public generally, pledging himself that every exertion shall be used to promote their accommodation and comfort.

For the convenience of settlers, and strangers arriving in the Colony, a portion of the Establishment has been fitted up as a FAMILY HOTEL, to which there is a distinct entrance; private apartments may be engaged for any period; they will be found spacious and airy, with every convenience than can be necessary.

The repute and experience which the Proprietor and Mrs. Gill have acquired in their former business will, he trusts, be sufficient guarantee that the culinary arrangements will be upon the best footing. The stock of wines, spirits, ale, porter, liqueurs, &c., have been specially selected, and, on trial, will be found of superior description.

Breakfasts, luncheons, dinners, suppers, &c., including dishes of every variety, furnished on the shortest notice, and at the most moderate rates.

The coach-house and stables afford ample accommodation, the latter particularly will be found dry and well ventilated, and an experienced groom has been engaged for this department.

Mr. Gill begs to assure the public, that it is his intention in conducting his business to meet the circumstances of the times by the most moderate charges, whilst at the same time, nothing shall be wanting in good fare, civility, and attention, to merit their support.

NOTICE OF REMOVAL.

J. FIELDING, Pastrycook and Confectioner, in returning thanks to his numerous friends and patrons for past favours, begs to inform them and the public generally, that he has taken those premises, next the Victoria Theatre, lately occupied by Mr. Gill, and known as

THE VICTORIA CONFECTIONERY ESTABLISHMENT,

Which will be open on Monday next, the 4th of September, with a varied and well selected stock of bottled fruits, jams, jellies, and marmalades, together with comfits of all kinds, medicated and other lozenges, and every article in the "Confectionery Department" of the very best quality.

J. F. in calling the attention of the public to his

REFRESHMENT ROOMS,

(To which there is a private entrance from the Theatre), begs to assure them that in this department the convenience and comfort of his customers will receive the greatest attention. In the CULINARY DEPARTMENT, he has secured the services of a first-rate COOK, and will have soups of every kind, steaks, chops, &c., from eleven o'clock, and hot joints from one to three o'clock, daily.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL

NEWSPAPER AND ADVERTISING AGENCY OFFICE,
320, Strand, London.

MR. P. L. SIMMONDS avails himself of this opportunity to solicit the favour of the future orders of his friends and the public, in every branch of the Commission and Agency Business for the Colonies, to which he devotes himself, and will be happy to receive commands for the supply of printing presses, type, ink, and every material in the office; maps, prints, stationery, and any other article which may be required.

Mr. Simmonds' long course of business with all the Colonies, and connexion with the best houses in every branch of trade, enables him to execute all commissions entrusted to him, not only with the utmost promptitude, but upon the most reasonable and satisfactory terms.

It frequently happens that much delay and inconvenience arise from parties residing in the Colonies being unable to procure, or unwilling to pay the exorbitant prices demanded for articles which can be obtained cheaper and of better quality, shipped direct to their order, through a responsible and trustworthy London agent and correspondent.

Terms—Cash on shipment.

By order of the Trustees.

W. G. BURGIS will sell the above Estate by public auction, on SATURDAY, September 16th, at Mr. Richard Ridges, Horse and Jockey, George-street, Windsor, precisely at Twelve o'clock,

HIS PROPERTY is so well known, both for beauty of situation and fertility of soil, that the Auctioneer thinks it useless to take up the time of the public by repeating its well-known merits: suffice it to say, that this Estate is bounded on the south by that splendid run for cattle, known as the Wilberforce Common, commencing at John Dunstan's south-east corner; on the west by John Dunstan; on the north by Churchill and others; and on the east by a good road.

The premises consist of a strong well-built stone House, with a verandah in front, containing a sitting-room, bed-rooms, store, kitchen, and an excellent granary; slab-built huts, stables, and barn. About a quarter of a mile from the house is a beautiful garden, containing about eight acres laid out in first-rate style, and growing a splendid assortment of fruit trees, with vegetables of every description—the whole strongly fenced in, with a gardener's house and out-houses erected upon the spot; distance from Wilberforce four miles; from Windsor eight miles. In the driest seasons there has always been a plentiful supply of water.

TERMS OF SALE:

Twenty per cent. cash deposit, the remainder by approved endorsed bills at 3, 6, 9, and 12 months from day of sale, the two last bills bearing interest at the rate of ten per cent. per annum. Any party paying Cash will be allowed a liberal discount.

Persons wishing to treat for the above Estate by private contract can do so, by applying personally, or by letter, post paid, to W. G. Burgis, or Thomas M'Donnell, George-street, Windsor.
